

*This song now belongs to Clan MacAulay, in memory of Catriona and in recognition of all the kindness shown to both of us over the years, by the wonderful MacAulay family.

Words and Lyrics by Donald Mackenzie

MacAmhlaigh gu bràth

From the land of Ardincaple to Antrim's lovely shore
From the machair of South Uist, and the wild Atlantic's roar
From the prairie fields of Canada to Australia's blinding heat
There are many miles between us, but tonight, at last, we meet.

Chorus

*MacAmhlaigh gu bràth, dulce Periculum
There's sweetness in the danger of battles lost and won MacAmhlaigh gu bràth, forever and always May the loving arms of kinship embrace you all your days*

We come down through history, we walk the sands of time
Our ancient tales and mystery are handed down the line
Strong were we in battle, fearless in the fight
Now we light the flame of friendship and keep it burning bright

Chorus ... MacAmhlaigh gu bràth ...

So, out across the wide world to wherever you call home
We hold you close in our hearts, you'll never walk alone
For should the weight get heavy and you stumble on life's road
There's a brother and a sister, here to share the load.

Chorus ... MacAmhlaigh gu bràth ...
